The RFC Editor Future Development Program

- Developed a new model for RFC Editor function
  - In the proposed, new model the community oversees the evolution of the series by means of an open working group. Proposed changes that reach rough consensus will be reviewed by an RFC Series Approval Board (RSAB) that consists of the RSCE and people representing the various streams.
  - The RFC Editor role is changing to that of a consulting editor (RFC Series Consulting Editor or RSCE). In this model, an expert will provide guidance to the community, the streams, and to the RPC to evolve the series.
  - The IAB will no longer manage or oversee the RFC series. The community and the streams will do that. The IAB will continue to be in the appeal path if there are disputes.
- Program last call for draft-iab-rfced-future-rfced-model ended Nov 5
- You can also provide feedback in the community last call, or right now on the mailing list: rfced-future@iab.org
- Meeting was yesterday to address last calls issues; another (hopefully this time final) interim is planned
