Workshop on Analysing IETF Data (AID)

Nov 29 - Dec 2, 2021, 14:00-18:00 UTC, online

This workshop aims to enable engineers and researchers alike to mine the IETF's data sources in order to explore trends through the analysis of IETF data, such as email archives, I-Ds, RFCs, and the datatracker. This work can be used to derive insights into the inner workings of the process of standardization, participation, and governance.

Workshop committee: Niels ten Oever, Colin Perkins, Corinne Cath, Mirja Kühllewind, Zhenbin, Li, Wes Hardaker

The RFC Editor Future Development Program

- Developed a new model for RFC Editor function
  - In the proposed, new model the community oversees the evolution of the series by means of an open working group. Proposed changes that reach rough consensus will be reviewed by an RFC Series Approval Board (RSAB) that consists of the RSCE and people representing the various streams.
  - The RFC Editor role is changing to that of a consulting editor (RFC Series Consulting Editor or RSCE). In this model, an expert will provide guidance to the community, the streams, and to the RPC to evolve the series.
  - The IAB will no longer manage or oversee the RFC series. The community and the streams will do that. The IAB will continue to be in the appeal path if there are disputes.

- Program last call for draft-iab-rfced-future-rfced-model is open until Nov 5
- You can also provide feedback in the community last call, or right now on the mailing list: rfced-future@iab.org
- Also join the next (and final) meeting Wednesday, Nov 10, 15:30 UCT+1

Independent Submission Editor (ISE)

Adrian Farrel is stepping down as Independent Submission Editor (ISE) at the end of his current term in February 2022.

Adrian, thanks for everything you have done in the last (nearly) 4 years to improve the ISE function for our community by using this role also as an advocate for inclusivity!

Nominations or suggestions for candidates are welcome at ise-search22@iab.org.
