Note Well

This is a reminder of IETF policies in effect on various topics such as patents or code of conduct. It is only meant to point you in the right direction. Exceptions may apply. The IETF's patent policy and the definition of an IETF "contribution" and "participation" are set forth in BCP 79; please read it carefully.

As a reminder:

- By participating in the IETF, you agree to follow IETF processes and policies.
- If you are aware that any IETF contribution is covered by patents or patent applications that are owned or controlled by you or your sponsor, you must disclose that fact, or not participate in the discussion.
- As a participant in or attendee to any IETF activity you acknowledge that written, audio, video, and photographic records of meetings may be made public.
- Personal information that you provide to IETF will be handled in accordance with the IETF Privacy Statement.
- As a participant or attendee, you agree to work respectfully with other participants; please contact the ombudsteam (<https://www.ietf.org/contact/ombudsteam/>) if you have questions or concerns about this.

Definitive information is in the documents listed below and other IETF BCPs. For advice, please talk to WG chairs or ADs:

- BCP 9 (Internet Standards Process)
- BCP 25 (Working Group processes)

The Recharter!

RFC3339 nit: -00:00 is not legal in ISO8601:2000 and later revisions

The work on this format discovered an issue with RFC 3339. When ISO 8601 was revised in 2000, the “-00:00” offset which RFC 3339 had invented for “offset isn’t relevant” was made invalid. This means that RFC 3339 is not a strict subset of the current version of ISO 8601.

To fix this issue, the working group will additionally update RFC 3339 by removing the definition of “-00:00” and updating the definition of “Z” (Zulu) to mean that the offset to local time is not known, leaving “+00:00” to mean that UTC is the preferred reference point for local time.

Any other changes to RFC 3339 are explicitly outside the charter for this working group.
